

Scalability Challenges in Computational Electromagnetics

Vikram Jandhyala
Department of Electrical Engineering
University of Washington

In this talk, we examine a few emerging problems and applications related to integral equation methods including (i) parallel and secure on-demand scalability in cloud platforms, (ii) mixed-dimensionality and geometry-based redundancy extraction, and (iii) Green's functions on random graphs.